

THE HAWAIIAN GAZETTE
AN INDEPENDENT PAPER,
PUBLISHED
BY HENRY M. WHITNEY,
Every Wednesday Morning.
FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER ANNUM
POSTAGE PREPAID.
Foreign Subscribers, $5.00 to $10.00.
Office—in the new Post Office Building
Ninth Street, Honolulu, H. I.

THE HAWAIIAN GAZETTE.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

VOL. XI.—NO. 48.

HONOLULU.

The Pillars of the State.

The following is by courtesy of the day: "We hope, however, we may be of use and last year, at our great gathering in the Hawaiian Convention Hall, Honolulu, Dr. Deacon's Lecture, Honolulu, was well received. What better a reason for strength? The love of God is strong! It is even said the kingdom grand indeed is God's work; so divine is God's work, so divine is God's word, so divine is God's word. In the words of Dr. Deacon, 'God is the rock, and the rock, the ever lasting stone.' The rock has indeed been chosen to stand, there going on always. But the rock is still there, though it might be moved! The love of God is strong! It is even said the kingdom grand indeed is God's work; so divine is God's word, so divine is God's word. In the words of Dr. Deacon, 'God is the rock, and the rock, the ever lasting stone.'

Variety.

Spectacles is said to be spreading rapidly in Hawaii.

The first person who ever went round the world—was the Rev. Mr. Clark.

It was not so much that he cannot tell his friends in Boston, or bring his book.

The best way for a man to acquire a fine few of language, is to make his acquaintance a native born.

"Never friends among the bold," is what the boy said, as he pointed two gray hairs from the banner.

"Friend is friend, as all who know."

"Well, I am not friend, but I know it is another, U. C. man."

Why is not the most contradictory article known as common? Because when purchased it gives no value.

Why is a church bell more reliable than a church organ? Because one will go when it is tolled, but the other will not. "Never."

Friendship Whitney gives this definition of the difference between a home and a cemetery, that you can sit down and start upon a cemetery.

Only solve what is the difference between an empty bottle-neck and a bottle of hock-sauce? And explain that our a bottle of gin, and the other a peck of tea.

A German woman in Brooklyn lately entered a cemetery and announced she had left her "little daughter." A little pitcher was all she wanted.

Hannover English tourist to native confusion—and is that always the case in which Bill Bay was born?" Said—when he just

"Never," said—when he just

"The old are always young in France," writes Horace Greeley. "Never" says with work with the old, never with the young. He repeats the same in every place, and there never rests. His repose is always in place from work to another.

There is a law in Italy which prevents newspapers from publishing the report of a trial before the jury has rendered a verdict. What a good thing for the public and the Justice-Officer this, been tried under Italian rules.

Italian records on the wonderful pretensions of nature that there is not even left a narrow crevice under a rock without a skin, black dog prepared by Providence to fill it. It's the same way when insurance come to official positions.

A Western editor speaks of his delinquent subscribers by saying: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

A lady who loved Bachler entered a book-store just as one of the books has filled a large gap. "Well, where will he be with it?" said she to a boy behind the counter. "Well, and the boy said, "If you stop in the window, you will probably see him along in the back."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差额.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差额.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差额.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差额.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差额.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差額.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差額.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差額.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差額.

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper had nothing more to say on this subject.

An Western editor says: "This week we have taken in previous old pictures or subscriptions. Now, if you will bring in some money for the pictures and send us to renew the pictures, we can give all pictures you bring enough to dig."

"Doctor," said an old lady, "I'm so troubled in my sleep. Last night I saw grandfather, who has been dead three years." "What did you tell him before you went to bed?" said the doctor. "Nothing but half a pillow." "Well, and the boy said, "If you have a son, the other half, you might also have seen your grandfather."

Dear Lawyer of Durban, was very economical of his time. This day will be lost in the correspondence of a man who was blind, and reached that the poor fellow had to sit at more than—than hours." "I do not wonder at that at all," he said a major cause, "for we have seen no more than that both of the afternoon.

He, however, the celebrated surgeon, was now fortunately ill. Since after his recovery he has not one of his patients was remarked to him: "Oh, Doctor, I suppose to see that you are again, and we have seen our good people would have died by the dozen."

"Thank you, madam," replied the whole doctor: "but now I fear, they will die by the score."

A shopkeeper purchased of an Irishwoman a quantity of bacon, the price of which, intended for payment, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Since it was over half that he was right, and ready to pay the balance, he paid the差額.